

Capacity Building on Resilient Recovery

Overview

Six national governments, total of 158 officials, have received training on resilient recovery since IRP developed the module in 2010 (Table 1). Participants, mostly high level, were engaged in long-term recovery in field or policymaking.

Trainees were provided copies of guidance notes on recovery, PowerPoint presentations, post-disaster scenarios, and CD with all relevant materials and references on recovery. The training was in English, and interpretation was arranged for Vietnam, Haiti, and Serbia.

Feedback

Attracting the interests of governments and partners, IRP training addresses gaps on recovery and reinforces existing recovery initiatives. Feedback from participants is shown below.

Transfer of Module

IRP is transferring the training module to relevant institutes to scale up capacity building of government officials engaged in long-term recovery.
